Global Economic News

The Federal Reserve's (Fed) top Wall Street cop Michael Barr and other bank regulators sought to reassure sceptical US lawmakers that their plans to hike US bank capital requirements would not impede lending or hurt small businesses. Members of the US Senate Banking Committee from both parties pressed Barr, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation's (FDIC) Martin Gruenberg and acting Comptroller of the Currency Mike Hsu on their "Basel III Endgame" proposal which would overhaul how banks gauge risk and, in turn, how much capital they must hold against potential losses. (Reuters)

The US dollar tumbled by the most in a year, after soft inflation data led traders to ramp up bets the Federal Reserve (Fed) will start cutting interest rates by mid-2024, sending Treasury yields plunging. A Bloomberg gauge of the dollar tumbled as much as 1.3%, the largest such drop since November 2022. It stayed close to the previous day's close, helping propel the won and ringgit to the top of Asia's currency rankings. (Bloomberg)

Japan's economy slipped back into reverse over the summer, underscoring the fragility of the country's recovery, and backing the case for continued support from the Bank of Japan (BOJ) and the government. Gross domestic product (GDP) shrank at an annualised pace of 2.1% in the third quarter, largely on the back of falling business spending, a lack of recovery in consumer spending, and higher imports, the Cabinet Office reported. (Reuters)

British annual consumer price inflation (CPI) fell to a lower-than-expected 4.6% in October from 6.7% in September, official data showed .The increase in consumer prices was the smallest since October 2021. The Bank of England's (BOE) staff forecasts and the consensus from a Reuters poll of economists had pointed to a reading of 4.8%. Annual core inflation fell to 5.7% from 6.1%. (Reuters)

Oil prices rose as China's factory output and retail sales beat expectations, a day after the International Energy Agency (IEA) raised its oil demand growth forecast for this year. Brent futures rose 18 cents, or 0.2%, to US$82.65 a barrel by 0647 GMT, while US West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude advanced 15 cents, also 0.2%, to US$78.41.China's October economic activity perked up as industrial output grew at a faster pace and retail sales growth beat expectations, an encouraging sign for the world's second-largest economy. (Reuters)

China's government land sales revenue fell at a faster pace in October, official data showed, adding to fiscal strains on the country's local governments as cash-strapped property developers remain cautious about buying more land. Revenue from land sales fell 25.4% in October from a year earlier, extending a decline of 21.3% the prior month, according to Reuters calculations based on data from the finance ministry. Revenue fell 20.5% in January-October year-on-year. (Reuters)

Pickups in China's consumer spending and industrial output last month provided a needed boost to the world's second-largest economy, as policymakers continue to weigh support for a recovery beset by an ongoing property crisis. Retail sales climbed 7.6% in October from a year earlier, the National Bureau of Statistics said, a better-than-forecast result aided in part by favourable comparisons to a weak month in 2022. October also captured the week-long Golden Week holiday period, during which many Chinese travelled around the country and shopped. Industrial production rose 4.6%, slightly higher than projections.
